Roger Dery
GEM DESIGN
Summer Color

Dear Friends,

Since we are in East Africa this summer buying new gem rough to facet and working alongside our partners in philanthropic efforts, we sent some of our very favorite Sri Lankan gems to The King's Jewelers.

We visited Sri Lanka this spring, but I have been enamored with its centuries-long legacy of gems ever since I first visited in 1981. In ancient times, Sri Lanka was called the "Gem Island" because it is one of the most mineral-rich land areas in the world. Sri Lanka is elegant and exotic, and it is fiercely proud of its heritage in gems.

I believe that every gem has the ability to change lives, which is why I am dedicated to Holistic Sourcing and am honored to have The King's Jewelers as a partner. I purchase gems directly from artisanal mining farmers to ensure that every gem is leaving a legacy of hope, change, and progress in their families and communities. Miners love their work and we want them to know that we, and you, believe in them.

From sunny and spectacular East Africa,

Roger Dery

Make sure to stop by this summer to see our beautiful collection of colored gems from the Derys!

SPINEL

The History of Spinel

Spinel was often mistaken for ruby or sapphire before the science of gemology came to be. In fact, the 14th century Black Prince's Ruby in the British crown jewels is actually a Spinel. In 1783, a mineralogist identified the differences between ruby and spinel — this is thought to be the birth of modern gemology!

The Colors of Spinel

Red, Blue, Pink, Orange, Lavender...Spinel will let you choose!

Why We Love It:

1. Wearability (8.0 on Mohs Scale)
2. Intense colors
3. Value & Rarity
4. Birthstone for August — it's not just Peridot anymore!

Sources for Spinel

Found around the globe in places such as Tanzania, Myanmar (Burma), Thailand, and Sri Lanka. Vietnam is home to the exceptionally rare Cobalt Blue Spinel, which has a neon blue color that must be seen in person — luckily, we have one in store!
